What is Public Health? Visit: www.thisispublichealth.org for more information.

The Norwood Health Department is directed by a Board of three elected officials, called the Board of Health. Each member is elected for a three-year term. The Board of Health oversees and authorizes the Health Department to take actions to protect the public health of Norwood. All actions and decisions made by the Board and the Health Department are in the best interest of the public health.

The Health Department protects the residents of Norwood by maintaining and creating conditions that keep people healthy. This includes:

- Investigating health problems and health threats.
- Preventing, minimizing and containing adverse health effects from communicable disease, disease outbreaks, chronic disease, environmental hazards, injuries and risky health behaviors.
- Planning and collaborating with other emergency partners for public health emergencies.
- Implementing health promotion programs and engaging with the community.

The job of the Health Department also includes ensuring compliance with public health laws and ordinances, and using enforcement authority when appropriate. These duties are met by conducting inspections, processing permits, investigating diseases outbreaks and disease trends, conducting clinics, partnering with local, state and federal agencies, and providing information to the community. The Board of Health and the Health Department strive to keep Norwood at the forefront of local public health by keeping up to date on health issues and providing new services that reflect the changes in the public health landscape. The health of the public affects your every day life; we ensure the public health is protected.

Mosquitoes are more than a nuisance, they can transmit disease such as West Nile Virus(WNV) and Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE).
